What

WBA is offering our expertise to your firm if a requirement or need arises where inspection of expansion joint systems form part of the scope of work.

As the industry's premier and longest tenured expansion joint manufacturer, Watson Bowman Acme understands the rigors any expansion joint system must undergo during its design life. We have nearly 70 years of experience in supplying, inspecting, repairing, and replacing expansion joint systems on bridges, buildings and stadiums.

Why

For us, educating the industry on expansion control is much more important than making our next sale.

Our team of experts in design, manufacturing, and installation are at your disposal to investigate any condition. It does not matter whether we supplied the expansion joint systems on your Client's project, we will provide clear and concise, technically valid and professional feedback.

How

Through the use of sophisticated non-destructive testing equipment, our experienced Inspectors provide a holistic picture of the expansion joint condition not only on visually accessible surfaces, but substrate and surrounding conditions.

In most cases, small repairs made to problem areas fend off major repairs or safety issues encountered by the public. Our inspection reports pinpoint suggested repair areas to minimize disruption to access and minimize the cost of maintenance.

When

We are available when you need us!

Contact our Technical Services department to discuss your needs, and schedule one of our Inspectors to work alongside the inspection team.
